Bay Council OK's Chapel Hill project

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Plans for a residential development at Bay St. Louis' doorstep were approved in a snap Tuesday night.

"Full speed ahead," said a happy Chet LeBlanc of Design Built Consulting Inc. after the unanimous vote of approval for "Chapel Hill." With council's okay in his pocket, LeBlanc hopes to close Friday on purchase of the nine-acre tract at the foot of the Bay bridge.

The proposed development, fashioned after turn of the century architecture that characterizes Bay St. Louis' old town, will include 48 residential structures on 6.5 acres of land between North Beach Boulevard and North Second Street.

Another 2.5 acres at the edge of the Bay will be fenced and remain an undeveloped complement to the residential community.

While the project has had the backing of city officials for months, a series of circumstances have kept final approval of the plans pending until Tuesday night's vote. Last week, council intended to sign off on the project, but instead approved its details before approving a Special Use District for the tract.

The Special Use District is necessary because the tract is zoned for commercial development rather than residential use. Meanwhile, some concerns had been voiced at the last minute that the city would need to grant variances for some of the residential lots, because some don't meet setback regulations of the R-1 zoning code.

But city Attorney John Scafide said Tuesday no variances are necessary, because the city's acceptance of a Special Use District includes approval of the residential tract's details for development.

Chapel Hill residents will belong to a homeowner's association, which collects dues for maintenance of its collective grounds. Homes will face a common area with picket fenced front yards, and the complex will be enclosed by walls, fences and gates. A 10-seat chapel is planned as an amenity, along with waterfront access and gazebos.

Patio-type homes coming to Waveland?

BY BETSY GAGNET

Several planning and zoning matters were on the agenda at this week's meeting of the Waveland Mayor and Board of Aldermen.

Mayor Tommy Longo and the board heard from developers interested in building a 14 home subdivision off Ryan Street.

The developers addressed the board at Monday's workshop meeting, describing the patio home type of housing planned for the development. The 1,300-1,400-square-foot homes typically have small yards and are situated approximately eight to 10 feet away from each other.

The developers had previously addressed the city's Planning and Zoning Commission, but were informed the city's zoning ordinance did not contain a provision for such a development.

At Monday's workshop, Waveland City Attorney Ronnie Artigues, Jr. cautioned the board that there was no request pending before it, and therefore no action could be taken.

Artigues then informed the developers that, as proposed, each of the lots in the subdivision would require several variances in order for the homes to be built. He suggested that instead of seeking the variances on each lot, the developers explore with the Planning and Zoning Commission the possibility of a zoning amendment to address the particular type of development.

'Jazz in Pass' set

BY ED LEPOMA

(See schedule on page 12A) If you like jazz, then Pass Christian's War Memorial Park is the place to be, come this Saturday, May 8, beginning at 11 a.m.

Free to the public, the 1999 "Jazz in the Pass" celebration promises a full slate of musicians, and savory food. And, festival-goers are invited to dress comfortably, bring along a rug or a lawn chair and sit under the shade of the large Live Oaks for the daylong celebration.

Rain won't spoil the occasion. Festival organizers say activities will be moved to the VFW Hall, 401 E. Beach Blvd., in case it rains.

The "Jazz in the Pass" is all part of the city's year-long Tricentennial Celebration, and chairperson Jenny Lou Mintz has planned the festival for nearly a year. Organizational support has come from the Pass Christian Chamber of Commerce, Kiwanis Club, Rotary Club, Friends of the Library and the Pass Alumni Association.

Performers slated to appear include: the Pass Christian school bands; Our Mother of Mercy Choir; the Perfect Mixx; the Mississippi MUD Bugs; Gulf Breeze; RSVP Second Liners, Dixie Dots; SPICE; and

New Orleans Banjos.

A highlight of the festival will be an 8 p.m. jazz session. And, during the celebration, commemorative ceremonies will honor several black jazz greats, including John Handy and Joe B. Jackson. Both had jazz funerals in Pass Christian, which promoters say were the only New Orleans-style services ever held in Mississippi. Also honored will be Eddie Watson and his brothers, Harry, Charles, Blue, and Henry. "Gator" Watson. They formed the Watson Brothers and were well known musicians who played the Miramar Hotel, the Pass Yacht Club and other night spots. Janette Salvant Kimball, who was pianist for the "Papa" Celestine Band from New Orleans, and also played locally at socials.

Landfill opponents denied referendum on hot issue

BY ED LEPOMA

It was a bittersweet victory this week for citizens groups opposing a privately-owned landfill proposed in Hancock County's buffer zone surrounding the Stennis Space Center.

Two groups, Hancock County Citizens for Responsible Dumping, and Picayune-based Mississippians Against Dumping, launched a concerted effort to force the landfill issue to a public referendum before and after the Hancock County Solid Waste Authority voted unanimously to negotiate a contract with Mississippi Waste of Hancock County. The group, headed by Paige York-Losee of Hattiesburg, has offered to permit, construct and operate a combination rubbish site-landfill on part of a 723-acre tract located off Texas Flat Road and near the Hancock-Pearl River County.

The opposing groups needed over 5,000 signatures of registered voters in Hancock County, which represents about 20 percent of the total number of voters.

At the Board of Supervisors meeting Monday, Chancery Clerk Tim Kellar announced that the groups had obtained the required signatures.

Kellar said the office of Circuit Clerk Pam Metzler checked the signatures on the petitions circulated by the two groups, and had certified that 5,790 are registered voters. Metzler said the groups needed only 5,700 signatures, since there are 22,810 voters registered in Hancock County.

Board of Supervisors President Philip Moran asked county attorney Gerald Cox,

"Where do we go now?"

Cox said supervisors had anticipated the required votes would be obtained, and asked him to get an opinion from the state Attorney General's office.

That opinion, delivered to Cox April 9, from assistant AG Mike Lawford, said the decision is now in the hands of the county's Regional Solid Waste Authority, and supervisors can't call a vote on the issue.

Lawford based his opinion on a 1994 case involving the Three

Woman nabbed on Sycamore

BY ED LEPOMA

Hancock County's Narcotics Task Force announced this week they have arrested a 39-year-old woman for selling drugs on Sycamore Street, where Bay St. Louis Councilperson Connie Lampley recently complained drug sales were taking place night and day.

Task Force Executive Director Shane Corr said agents Mike Hardy and Jeff Hare arrested Eileen Ann Jones, 413 Sycamore Street, Monday after allegedly seeing her selling crack cocaine at the intersection of Watts and Sycamore Streets.

Corr said Jones is being held at the county jail without bond on a charge of sale of a controlled substance crack cocaine.

"She's being held without bond because she was out on bond on two other counts of the sale of a controlled substance," said Corr.

Specialist E-4 Madeline Summers of Waveland got a hug from President Clinton recently when he visited troops at Langley Air Force Base in Virginia. Summers is the daughter of Edna Summers and the late Price Hughes, and her mother proudly loaned the picture for use in the Echo. She plans to visit her daughter at the base this coming week.

Card of Thanks

Although the calendar tells us it has been several months, our hearts feel like it was yesterday.

At this time we wish to extend our heartfelt appreciation for the outpouring of love and support everyone has shown to our family during the loss of our loved one, father, son and husband, Carl (Big "O") Olsen.

The support shown to us at the accident site, the love and support at the hospital, the night of the accident, the many prayers, thoughts, phone calls, personal visits with us at our home, the many masses, beautiful flowers, cards, food brought to our homes, the staff at Hancock Medical Center, the EMTs of AMR and the support group of counselors from the Long Beach Fire Department, the tremendous support from all the fire departments throughout the state and neighboring states, to the Annunciation Bereavement Committee and businesses who donated food and for the preparation for our luncheon afterwards, all this touched our lives deeply.

I'm sure there may be someone who is not mentioned, but be assured that we appreciated it. With the beautiful smile God has given us, I ask you, use it every day as it will bring you health and much happiness.

Harbormaster building bids are being reviewed

BY ED LEPOMA

Hancock County Supervisors have asked Compton Engineering to look over bids received Monday on the harbormaster building planned as an addition to the county marina.

The Board publicly opened two bids, and there might actually be three bids to consider. At first, county attorney Gerald Gex disqualified Twin L Construction Company of Pass Christian because the required certificate of responsibility was not attached on the outside of the sealed bid envelope.

He opened a bid from Scott Favre's Panther Utilities of Mississippi in Bay St. Louis, which submitted a base price of $135,115. Lagniappe Construction of Bay St. Louis submitted a base bid of $144,322.

Gex told the Echo later that there were differing opinions from the state Attorney General's office and the State Auditor on whether a licensed contractor needed a certificate of responsibility, and he needed to research the issue more.

Gex said he will make a recommendation at the Board's recess meeting on May 17 on whether supervisors can open Twin L's bid.

Geoff Clemens, Compton's consultant on the marina and the harbormaster's projects, said both bids opened Monday close to the funds that are available for the project.

There was other news about the marina coming out of Monday's meeting. Harbormaster Oliver Shauque told supervisors the $1.2 million marina off Pleasure Street on the Lakeshore is ready for the ribbon-cutting.

The ceremony is scheduled at 11 a.m. June 18, and supervisors also authorized Shauque to rent a dumpster, port-o-lets, and get prices on renting the contractor's trailer already on site, which can be used for a temporary harbormaster's office.

Shauque will arrange for a public pay phone to be installed at the marina.

The harbormaster said he and Gex are working out the final ordinance, which will set the rates for the boat slips, and spell out the rules and regulations for those using the public harbor. He said they should be ready to present at the May 17 recess meeting.

In other business, supervisors, concurred in Fort and Harbor recommendations to let a contract for $32,500 to Compton Engineering to perform engineering services and oversee the dredging of Little Lake Pass, which silted over during Hurricane Georges.

P&H Executive Director Hal Walters said the pass is the lifeblood to Port Bienville, and the Federal Emergency Management Administration will provide a grant for 75 percent of the total cost.

District 2 Supervisor Rocky Pullman said he will ask the Navy and Stennis to share in the cost of dredging the lake.

Supervisors also sent a resolution to the Hancock County Water and Sewer District complaining that the contractor extending sewerage in various parts of the county has torn up some roads.

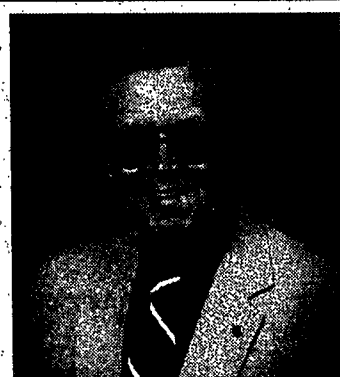

Board President Philip Moran said Central Avenue and Avenue B were torn up in Shoreline Park, and District 4 Supervisor Steve Seymour said Arnold Street was torn up in his district.

They want the contractor to pay the cost of overlaying the damaged streets.

Sheriff to use speeding monitor

BY ED LEPOMA

Under current law, Sheriff's Department deputies can't use radar to catch speeders, but can use speed-monitoring devices.

Hancock County Sheriff Ronnie Peterson came before supervisors Monday and gained approval to purchase the monitoring device through state contract.

"We're having a hard time curtailing speeders, especially in the rural parts of the county," Peterson said. "We'd like to set it up (the monitoring device) in various parts of the county, mainly as a deterrent. It might save some lives," he said.

Peterson said the blinking device tells drivers how fast they are going, and acts as a deterrent. "They automatically slow down," he said.

Although the county will purchase a device that can record how fast a motorist is actually going, county attorney Gerald Gex said deputies can't use the measurement to ticket violators.

However, deputies could ask the Mississippi Highway Patrol for assistance in areas where speeding is rampant, he said.

The monitoring device is expected to cost between $6,000 and $7,000.

'Frontline Party' set for teens

BY ED LEPOMA

High school students from Hancock, Harrison and Jackson counties are expected to convene at Point Cadet Plaza in Biloxi Saturday for a huge Frontline Party, sponsored by several groups.

The party, which begins at noon and lasts until 4 p.m., is part of a three-county effort to stamp out addiction to alcohol, tobacco or other harmful products. It is sponsored by Coast law enforcement agencies, the Partnership for a Healthy Mississippi, Hancock County PATH (Partnership Against Tobacco in Hancock) and the Partnership for a Healthy Gulfport.

There will be DJ music, free pizza and soft drinks and terrific door prizes.

The high schoolers are urged to enter "Frontlines" visual art poster contest. First, second and third place winners will be chosen from each county by teenagers participating in the contest, and winners will be awarded cash prizes. Artwork must be about freedom from addictions, and the posters can be created individually or by groups.

Students can also join a friend or groups of two to 10 and make up a two-to-three minute rap tune. All lyrics must include a message about freedom from addictions, with no profanity allowed.

Hook, the Sea Hawks mascot, will also be at the party.

"CUEVAS" QUOTES

By Ellis C. Cuevas

A "rain dance" appeared to be done by Hancock County Fire Marshal Richard Pate Tuesday morning as the clouds began to form. I guess that Richard did not have the right steps or the correct magical words.

Yet, most of the county had not received any rain by late Wednesday as the front passed through the area. Pate said we had received only one-half inch of rain total during March and April.

This makes conditions very dangerous for woods fires.

It has been so dry that our two bird water containers at home are getting used constantly by our feathered friends.

Last year Jane came up with the idea that the bases for large house plants would be a good size for birds to use to drink from and bathe. They are about fourteen inches wide and about two inches deep.

We have to fill them several times a day.

Please, everyone, remember, there is a county burn ban on.

P.S. Richard, it has to rain one of these days.

There will be a special day at Hancock Medical Center next Wednesday. It will be a Reunion Party for all babies born in the local hospital.

The event will take place in the new Women's and Children's Pavilion from 2 to 4 p.m.

So, mothers need to bring their children in. There will be special prizes and refreshments for the reunion.

Mammogram coupons offer Mother's Day incentive by florists

First Lady Pat Fordice and florists statewide think the best gift to give on Mother's Day this year is the gift of health.

That's why members of the Mississippi Florist Association have agreed to attach a coupon to every bouquet or corsage sold in honor of Mother's Day. The coupon will be worth $10 off a mammogram at any American College of Radiology-accredited facility in Mississippi through October 1999.

And that's why the Mississippi State Department of Health joins the First Lady and the Mississippi Florist Association (MFA) to encourage Mississippi women to participate in the state's breast cancer awareness campaign, Mammogram for Mom.

They aim to ensure a longer and healthier life for every woman by offering reduced cost mammograms.

"In Mississippi, many women neglect the opportunity to have the routine breast examination that can save their lives," said Fordice.

"My office joins the Mississippi State Department of Health and the Mississippi Florist Association to increase awareness about breast cancer prevention by offering women statewide the chance to get this lifesaving procedure.

"I encourage all Mississippi women to protect themselves against breast cancer — as a gift to themselves, their families and all their loved ones."

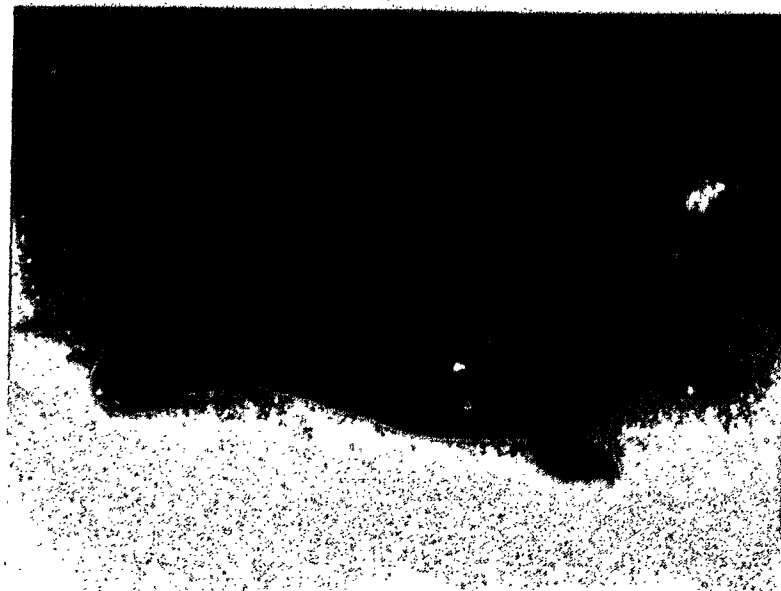

The MFA kicked off their participation in the breast cancer awareness campaign at their annual celebration of flowers in Jackson in March.

Mississippi reports the nation's lowest rate of women who get adequate screening to detect breast cancer at an early, treatable stage. Early detection is the key to survival, and screening tests help detect cancer in its earliest and most curable stages.

Breast cancer is the most commonly diagnosed cancer among American women. Although death rates from the disease have declined in recent years, breast cancer still accounts for 31 percent of all cancers among women.

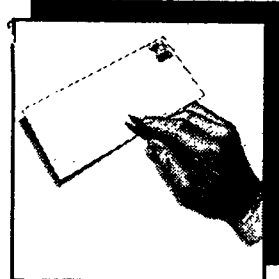

Studies estimate breast cancer will be diagnosed in 1.5 million American women this decade and that the deadly disease will claim nearly half a million lives.

Research published in the February 1998 edition of the American Journal of Public Health shows early detection through mammographies directly impacts reducing breast cancer deaths.

Turtle rescued

Gary Spencer Smith of Waveland came to the Echo last week with a rare diamond-backed terrapin turtle. He said he saved it from an almost certain death as it tried to cross busy U.S. Hwy. 90 from Ladner Street. Smith says the diamond-backed terrapin are becoming scarce due to habitat loss and past hunting of them. He plans to return it near the Honey Island Swamp area. (Echo staff photo by Ed Lepoma)

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Bay resident says Echo more concerned about illegal appliances than horse manure

To the Editor:

It truly amazes me that Sea Coast Echo reporters appear more concerned with the illegal dumping of electrical appliances on city-controlled property than with the fact that human life on Union Street in Bay St. Louis, "A Place Apart," Mississippi, is being forced, for over a year now, subjected, and expected to live in unbearable close proximity to horse manure and urine as it is being directly deposited onto and into the soil of this neighborhood.

On one occasion I returned home from a day of work to discover horse manure, somehow during the course of the day, had dropped just beside my mailbox. I suppose city workers are not paid to haul illegally dumped appliances? City workers don't get compensated to clean up horse manure either, so I was told by city administrative staff.

I, a resident, voter, law-abiding citizen, working taxpayer, cleaned up the manure myself — some two months later — after being disgusted with it at my feet every time I checked my mail and nearly stepping in it twice. I finally came to grips with the fact that the city nor the owner of the animals was going to clean up the mess left on this residential street. And no one seemed to care who was smelling it, stepping in it, nor if anyone even intended to clean it up!

Has the illegally dumped appliance been removed from the city-owned parking lot? Who removed it? No one seems to know who is responsible for removing loosely dumped horse manure from Bay St. Louis streets!

Added benefits for this once quiet Bay St. Louis neighborhood, as a result of the horses being allowed housing here, include but is not limited to the following: a lovely scented breeze blowing over our homes, the Disabled American Veterans (DAV) hall, a nearby religious facility, the local Train Depot (which is also a frequently chosen site to host many area social activities, including charitable fund raisers, city and group sponsored functions, and even private wedding ceremonies); a vast increase to fly population in the area (God only knows what diseases this pest transfer, I don't even know how they are continually getting into my home!)

And a nuisance in general — these horses, which are, what I consider, far from "gentle" (as an Echo reporter recently portrayed), have broken out of their fenced area extensively damaging my residential hurricane chain link fence while trampling my grounds, leaving extremely large hoof holes throughout my back yard one rainy January day.

I love animals too, but do horses belong in Bay St. Louis, in city limits, in residential areas? And who cleans up manure please?

Please follow up on the illegally dumped appliance and let the community know who removed it from the city parking lot and where it was taken. While researching the matter, please investigate and advise your readers as to who is responsible for horse manure cleanup. Heartfelt thanks.

Sand beach maintenance typical 'means to become the end'

Dear Editor:

A common failing of government and other non-profit institutions is the tendency for the means to become the end. An example of this is the county maintenance program on the Bay-Waveland South Beach.

As soon as the beach packs down from rain and tides to a hard crust suitable for walking, jogging, sun-bathing and volleyball, out come the maintenance machines fluffing up the sand and pushing the excess, soft sand to the water's edge where the incoming tide will take it out to sea. The soft, deep sand is unsuitable for recreational activities. Furthermore, rain and tides not only deplete the sand but the Sound near the shore is filling up with sand bars.

Also, the county has banned all boats (mostly small sailboats) from the beach because they interfered with the maintenance program.

Sand beach maintenance policy is a classic example of the governmental perversion whereby the means to an end becomes an end in itself.

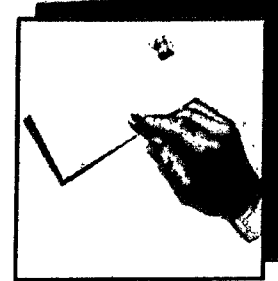

Sincerely,
Henry A. Fly

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Two issues of concern brought before Bay-Waveland School District

Dear Editor:

During the recent campaign for the Waveland seat on the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School Board, I had the opportunity to discuss issues with many community members. Two concerns surfaced again and again. I assured folks that whether I sat at the reserved seat on the board or in the audience, I would bring the issues to the board's attention.

The following enclosed in () is the script presented orally and in writing to the school board Monday, April 26:

(I am here to present two requests to improve our education community. First, I would like to request this board pass a resolution to be presented to the Pearl River Community College Board requesting PRCC classes be offered during the school day at Bay High School to qualified seniors beginning in August, 1999.

Currently, we have approximately 150 seniors at Bay High. Approximately 85%, or 128 of those seniors leave school early each day because they have fulfilled the Carnegie unit requirements for graduation.

Pearl River Community College could help resolve concerns of many parents and community members by providing an opportunity for seniors to begin earning college credits.

Gulf Coast Community College offers this service at Pass Christian High School and Long Beach High School. Our students deserve the same opportunity.

This proposal has been presented for at least the last four years to PRCC, to no avail.

A few facts: Hancock County will contribute in the neighborhood of $550,000 to PRCC this fiscal year. However, in 1995 statistics, less than 40% of the Hancock County residents who pursued community college education attended PRCC. In 1997 data, that number dropped to less than 30%. This is an opportunity for PRCC to increase their presence in Hancock County.

Encouraging PRCC to provide services at BHS will support our community's efforts and those of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's Education Committee's goal to provide post-secondary opportunities in Hancock County.

We, as a K-12 public education system must promote access to post secondary opportunities for our graduates. The lack of post secondary education opportunities in Hancock County leaves a serious gap in any economic development scheme. We must recognize, discuss and promote the link between education and economic development.

Again, I ask you to consider a resolution to have community college courses available to our students. I will volunteer to write the resolution for your review at the next board meeting if it is your wish.

The second request I would like this board to consider is a residency policy for administrators in this school district.

Currently, we have 13 administrators employed in this district with only one being a taxpayer resident of this school district. (Our food service director lives in Waveland.)

From an economic position, the total of the salaries of our administrators is $716,377. With fringes of 17.65% that total increases to $842,818. Of that total, 19% comes from federal funds and 31% from state funds. A solid 50%, $421,409 is paid from our local tax-generated dollars. But only one person contributes back to that tax base.

From an emotional position, if our administrators lived in this community, they might think 10 seconds longer before a student is removed from school to wander the streets and probably not return to school, increasing the illiteracy rate in our community.

Just 10 seconds longer to think if we have thought of every alternative possible. Our administrators can make decisions to remove students from the educational setting and not have to face those students and their families as we move through our daily lives of shopping, church and recreational activities in our community. At the end of the day, they lock the office or school door and head north or east and out of the school community.

I assure you, I have been an administrator in a school district in which I did not live. It was a luxury to be an educator in a district and not live there. However, it was not a luxury to the district. And it is not a benefit to this community's children not to have that commitment.

We talk about school-community relations. We want, or say we want community involvement. Well, the community will feel more connected to the schools when they have visible educational leadership within the community.

This is a very timely request because there are currently three administrative positions open. If a policy is not in effect, at least make it a procedure and criteria for these three current administrative openings.

A policy should allow a grandfather clause for the current administrators who reside outside the district and in their present positions.

However, if they choose to move from that established residence outside the district, they should then move within the school district boundaries.

The board responded favorably to the PRCC request. A meeting with PRCC administrators is to be scheduled.

The second topic was not received favorably. The Board indicated that there is no housing available for administrators and, although our administrators do not live in our community, they do a fine job.

I don't disagree on their fine job performance. That is not the issue. The issue is about community and school/community relations. How much better would it be for this community's residents and students if our administrators were visible and known to them as neighbors.

We meet our public school administrators when parents are called to serve on a committee, volunteer for a fund raiser or to deal with a discipline problem of their child. What a horrible disadvantage to the administrators to be known only in that light.

The Board chairperson closed the discussion on the residency issue by calling it rhetoric.

The Bay St. Louis-Waveland School Board members are Mrs. Barbara Boston, Mr. Richard Flowers, Mr. Bryon Griffith, Dr. Irene Koskan and Mr. Cleveland Williams.

The Board meets on the second and fourth Monday of each month beginning at 6:30.

Please let them know what you as taxpaying community members think about these issues or other concerns you may have. Our school board is in place to provide policy to insure the best educational system possible for our community.

Sincerely,
Sherry M. Ponder, PhD

House moves to clean up coastal recreational waters

BY ED LEPOMA

By voice vote last month, the U.S. House of Representatives passed an amendment to the 1972 Federal Clean Water Act aimed at improving the quality of coastal recreational waters nationwide.

It was about a week ago that Chris Lagarde, an aide to U.S. Rep. Gene Taylor told the Echo at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce's Environmental Committee that there were currently "no mandatory standards" for testing or monitoring coastal recreational waters, and advising the public when the waters are unsafe for swimming and other recreational activities.

The revelation came as the Environmental Protection Agency and the state Department of Quality were in town conducting the second phase of a study that will determine just how polluted is the Bay of St. Louis and the many tributaries that drain into it.

Scientists who briefed the Environmental Committee on results of an initial study taken in the Bay St. Louis watershed last July revealed that raw data "confirmed suspicions" that fecal coliform bacteria found in some tributaries exceeded safe water quality standards for recreational purposes, but excessive levels were not found in the Bay of St. Louis.

Lagarde furnished the Echo a synopsis of House Bill 999, which was taken up by the rules Committee and passed by voice vote April 22.

Entitled the "Beaches Environmental Assessment, Cleanup and Health Act," the legislation directs the EPA to establish uniform standards for testing and monitoring the quality of coastal recreational waters, including marine coastal waters and estuaries, and those of the Great Lakes. The bill also requires states to adopt new federal water quality standards to protect human health from pathogens, and establishes uniform criteria for notifying the public when coastal water quality standards are exceeded.

In 1986, EPA developed new human health water quality criteria for bacteria in recreational waters, but under the current law, states have the option of adopting the federal standards, modifying the standards due to site-specific concerns, or developing their own criteria through other scientific methods. Some states have still not adopted the EPA's new bacteria criteria.

The House passed similar legislation by voice vote on Sept. 22, 1992, but the Senate never acted on the measure. Comparable bills have been introduced in each Congress since then, but have not made it to the floor.

The current measure, as passed by the House, also authorizes a total of $150 million over five years in grants to states to implement monitoring programs.

The bill also directs EPA, within four years, to revise its water quality criteria for pathogens in coastal waters, and states would have to adopt the new standards within three years. It also directs EPA, within three years, to conduct studies to improve the scientific basis for establishing water quality criteria.

OLA advances to state track

By Finley Hewes

Our Lady Academy's track team turned in another outstanding performance and will travel to Jackson Friday to vie for state championship honors.

The Crescents, in a large field of 2A schools, finished second overall in the South State track meet and set three new school records.

Jill Rutherford finished first in the 100 meter dash with a school record throw of 101'2".

Latonya Piernas finished first in the 100 meter dash with a school record time of 12.58 and second in the 200 meter dash in 26.56.

Nina Crain won second in three events: high jump, with a new school record of 5'0", long jump, with 15'2.5", and 300 meter hurdles with a time of 49.62.

Leslie Esher was second in the 400 meter dash with a time of 1:05.61 and third in the 800 meter run with a time of 2:41.

Lauren Hansell competed in the 3200, 1600 and 800 meter runs with finishes of fifth, sixth and sixth, respectively, and earned valuable points that enabled the team to finish as highly as they did.

Vanessa Johnson finished third in the high jump with a jump of 4'10" and sixth in the 100 meter hurdles. DeNira Dedaux finished seventh in the 400 meter dash.

The 400 and 800 meter relay team, composed of Dedaux, Crain, Esher and Piernas, finished second in each event with excellent times of 51.91 and 1:49.59.

The 1600 meter relay team, composed of Dedaux, Crain, Esher and Katie Stahl, finished sixth. OLA qualified to compete in 10 of the 15 track events at the state meet.

Stennis Airport Air Show negotiations still continue

BY ED LEPOMA

Negotiations are continuing with promoters wanting to bring thousands to Stennis International Airport for a Labor Day weekend "Sky Parade" next year.

That was the word coming out from the Aviation Committee at a recess meeting of the Port and Harbor Commission last Wednesday.

Port Attorney Robert Genin has been negotiating a contract, which could bring the "Sky Parade" to Stennis beginning in the year 2000 and for the next three years. Genin said promoters have now agreed to post a $10 million liability insurance bond, and would provide security and cleanup for crowds, estimated to be in the neighborhood of 300,000.

At a previous meeting, Port Commission Chairman David McDonald said he would be opposed to serving beer or alcoholic beverages during the three-day event, but Genin said that stipulation had not scared away promoters.

The event is now held yearly at Jackson Airport, but promoters are looking for a new site because of increased air traffic at that airport.

In other business, Commissioners:

- Accepted the low bid of $84,248 from Smith Railway Services of Brookhaven for the rail addition to the car wash storage track located at Port Bienville;

- Awarded a contract for $9,500 to Diversified Coating of Daphne, Ala., for roof repairs at the Phillips Aviation terminal;
- Selected Compton Engineering to perform engineering services for the Little Lake Dredge Project for a cost of $32,500;

- Selected BCM Engineering of Biloxi to perform engineering services on the sewer extension for the Atlas Power Plant at a cost of $4,850;

- Awarded a contract for $46,880 to Airport Development Group, Denver, Colo., for the design, bidding specifications and construction management of a "mouser" lighting system that is needed before an Instrument Landing System is installed at the airport;

The firm's contract was also raised from $69,725 to $129,337, so it can redesign and put out for bids again the parallel taxiway project planned at Stennis.

Bill Stovall, Stennis Airport manager and the Port's Deputy Director, said the Federal Aviation Administration has provided a grant that covers 90 percent of lighting and taxiway improvements underway at Stennis.

Area youths perform with Slidell youth orchestra

Eight area youths have been performing with the Slidell Community and Youth Orchestra. The students are Brennan Besancon on tenor saxophone, Anna Brannin on alto saxophone, Samantha Neal on violin, Kevin Messer on trumpet, Shawn Negrotto on French horn, Dustin Tasker on alto saxophone, Lauren Veach on flute and Ryan Veach on alto Saxophone.

The orchestra is composed of area adults and youth from the greater St. Tammany Parish region. Under the musical direction of Dr. Frankie Kelly, they meet every Tuesday evening at Clearwood Junior High School in Slidell.

Kelly is an assistant professor of music at Southeastern Louisiana University in Hammond.

Community education of St. Tammany Parish School Board supports the orchestra, which begins in October and continues through May. This is the 13th year the musical group has been in existence. Some 60 members strong, the group provides an opportunity for people of all ages to interact through music.

In March the orchestra performed for fourth grade students in St. Tammany Parish schools. The annual event allows students in this grade to learn about the different musical instruments as well as enjoy the musical arrangements.

A community concert was held May 2 in Pottle Auditorium on the campus of southeastern Louisiana University.

A second community concert will be held Thursday, May 6 at 7:30 p.m. in Aldersgate Methodist church in Slidell.

For information about the concert, contact Linda Sisson at 504-781-5205.

Supers seek to close illegal county auto shop

BY ED LEPOMA

Supervisors will go to Chancery Clerk to stop an auto repair shop from operating in a mostly rural area of western Hancock County.

At Monday's meeting of the Board, supervisors voted unanimously to authorize county attorney Gerald Gex to file suit in Chancery Court asking for a temporary restraining order and a permanent injunction against Emory and Nelda Carroll, and Albert Sanders, the operator of the shop.

The auto repair shop is located on Alsobrooks at the intersection of Fleming just off Hwy. 43, and supervisors in early March denied a petition by the Carrolls, owners of the property, to grant a "special exception" to the county's Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance in order to allow Sanders to continue his business.

The aggrieved parties had 10 days to appeal the decision to Circuit Court, but they did not, but neighbors complained to district Supervisor Rocky Pullman and Chancery Clerk Tim Kellar that Sanders was continuing to operate his business, despite the supervisors' previous action.

On Monday, supervisors instructed Gex to file the court action, and authorized him to hire Waveland attorney Ronnie Artigues to assist.

Previously, the county Planning Commission sent the Carrolls a notice to "stop all repairs of autos, effective Jan. 14," but the business continued operating, and petitioners later came back to the commission and requested the "special exception." The Planning Commission denied the petition by a 4-1 vote, but the Carrolls were allowed to appeal to supervisors.

The Carrolls originally came to the Planning Commission for a "conditional use" on a portion of a 16-acre tract of land to allow construction of a 30 x 40-foot shed for "the repair of personal cars and for storage."

Gex said the Carrolls can still use the metal shed for personal repairs and storage of personal vehicles, but they can't run a repair shop out of the premises.

At least 33 adjacent property owners signed a previous petition objecting to the repair shop.

In another zoning matter, supervisors upheld a verbal order given by Willie Gavney, the county's chief zoning enforcement officer, that stopped clearing of woods for a proposed airstrip in what might be within the boundaries of the White Cypress Subdivision.

Supervisors told Gavney to send Gill and Associates of Poyune a certified letter and inform the firm to cease from further clearing until Gex and representatives of the White Cypress Property Owners Association can determine if the land in question is indeed within the subdivision boundaries.

Even if it's not, Gavney said, the property owners still must come before the Planning Commission before proceeding with any plans for a private airfield.

A Place of Art is the annual arts festival and street sale held in Old Town Bay St. Louis. This year's event, originally scheduled for September, was interrupted when Hurricane Georges hit the Gulf Coast.

Saturday, May 8, the day before Mother's Day, is the rain date for this festival of arts and fine crafts.

Local and regional artists will exhibit and sell work from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. in the 100 and 200 blocks of Main Street. A Place of Art will feature paintings and photographs, as well as a variety of three-dimensional work in pottery, metal sculpture, stained glass and mixed media.

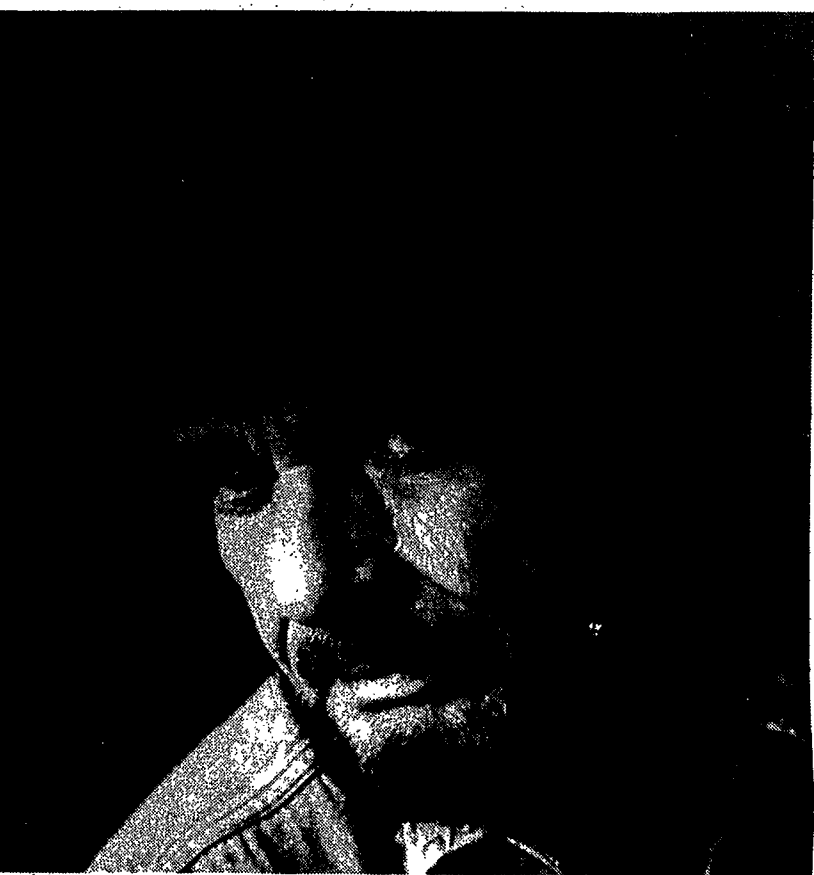

A Place of Art will be held in conjunction with Second Saturday Artwalk. Streets will be blocked off 7 a.m.-9 p.m. for the festivities which will continue all day and into the evening. For information, call Vicki Niolet at 467-8318.

Artist Frances Swigart-Steg will be showing a new collection of work at Quarter Moon Gallery in conjunction with the Old Town 2nd Saturday Artwalk May 8.

The body of work, titled "Millennium Renaissance," features contemporary designs produced by Swigart using centuries-old methods.

The legendary Merle Haggard performs Friday at Casino Magic

The legendary Merle Haggard is in concert at Casino Magic Bay St. Louis Friday, May 7 at 9 p.m. in the Magic Entertainment Complex. Tickets are $15, $20 and $25 through Ticketmaster or the Casino Magic Box Office.

What gray poupon has meant to mustards, Haggard has meant to country music. Like rock n' roll without Presley, and like Sears without Roebuck, country music without Haggard simply isn't!

Few country devotees, be they old-timers or neophytes, are unfamiliar with the craggy Haggard mask of a thousand photographs -- that countenance that's been etched by time and experience like the granite face of your favorite cliff.

And even fewer are those who are unfamiliar with the evocative Haggard delivery that has spawned an entire school of country vocal stylings.

In the ever-expanding array of country music stars, hitmakers and idols, Haggard walks in no man's shadow. Instead, he casts a far-reaching shadow of his own. Rare is the country balladeer that has mastered the idiom at so many different levels as he.

In listening to his uncanny craftsmanship, one quickly recognizes that this is a consummate troubadour who could have carved his niche as either a songwriter, a musician or a singer, so gifted was he in all those areas.

Instead he chose to expand and hone his talents in many dimensions simultaneously, developing his name as the quintessential country artist, rural America's Renaissance man, whose caliber will long provide a standard for all country artists who follow.

Haggard's life path has never been easy, nor has much of it been pretty, as aired in his 1981 book Sing Me Back Home. His childhood years were spent in Bakersfield, Calif., and the death of his father, when Merle was just nine years old, became the catalyst that led to a squandered youth.

At the same time, his love for the wandering songs of such as Jimmie Rodgers, led to an errant passion for the gleaming, endless railroad tracks and the siren song of slow freights and hobo jungles. And, along the way, to numerous brushes with the law.

His first single was "Singing My Heart Out," which received some regional airplay on the West Coast, but it was in 1963 that he eventually broke into the top 20 of Billboard's country charts with his first national hit, "Sing A Sad Song."

Since then the country charts have been his second home. His next few singles, "(All My Friends Are Gonna Be) Strangers," "Swinging Doors" and "The Bottle Let Me Down" -- all landed within the Top 10.

As a singer, Haggard openly admits to "borrowing" the stylings of his idols, Lefty Frizzell, Bob Wills and Jimmie Rodgers, in his early years, and speaks of such beyond-the-genre influences upon his music as Frank Sinatra and Bing Crosby.

Haggard can't be pinpointed in the past. And he won't be found rockin' and whittlin' with a shoebox full of yesterday's memories. His music speaks to country audiences today, while his mind and talents flirt with a new millennium.

THE SEA COAST ECHO—THURSDAY, MAY 6, 1999-11A

Coast celebrates Tourism Week

The Mississippi Gulf Coast has plenty to celebrate during National Tourism Week May 3-6. In seven short years, the "Playground of the South" has transformed itself from a sleepy tourist town before the 1992 arrival of gaming to one of the country's "hot emerging destinations for 1999," according to a recent survey of 500 travel agents by Fodor's Travel Publications.

The Mississippi Gulf Coast now boasts the title of the country's third largest pleasure destination with gaming, hosting over 20 million visitors annually who spend over $2.8 billion a year in tourism dollars, of which only 25% is spent on gaming.

In addition to increased visitation, the Mississippi Gulf Coast approaches the new millennium with significant tourism-related developments.

By year-end 1999, the "Playground of the South" will be home to 16,000 hotel rooms, up from only 6,000 rooms in 1992. By the year 2000, the Mississippi Gulf Coast room inventory will equal room counts in Atlantic City, N.J., and Reno, Nev.

In addition to ASA/Delta, Casino Airlink, Continental and Northwest, Air Tran now provides daily jet service to the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

This new air service has increased daily flights from 21 to 29, catapulting the amount of daily seat availability at Gulfport/Biloxi Regional Airport from 1,224 to 2,050 seats, a 70 percent increase.

"The Mississippi Gulf Coast is a thriving destination that has experienced double-digit tourism growth in the last seven years," said Stephen Richer, executive director of the Mississippi Gulf Coast Convention & Visitors Bureau.

"I feel confident that the vital tourism growth we've recently experienced will continue well into the new millennium."

"Both the public and private sector are heavily committed to educating the rest of the world about the many unique things we have to offer visitors to the 'Playground of the South' -- sugar-white beaches, championship deep-sea fishing, a multitude of historic and cultural attractions, an eclectic collection of museums, 20-plus golf courses, exceptional dining, unique shopping, year-round special events, 24-hour gaming excitement and, let's not forget, the genuine southern hospitality that radiates from our people," Richer said.

"We're certainly celebrating tourism!"

Hancock school to offer lodging, hospitality course

The Hancock County School District's Board of Education recently approved a new course, Lodging and Hospitality, to be offered at the Hancock County vocational Technical Center during the 1999-2000 school year.

Lodging and Hospitality will be a two-year course for students in grades 11 and 12.

The course is designed to emphasize several aspects of lodging and hospitality, including the investigation of new and emerging technologies and practices; examination of trends and changes in the industry; review of quality assurance practices and other related topics.

Al Bourgeois, Vo-Tech Center director, said, "This new course is a milestone since no other district in south Mississippi has such an innovative curriculum offering. Lodging and hospitality is in direct response to the growing needs of business and industry on the Mississippi Gulf Coast."

Magic restaurant staffers recognized

Casino Magic reaped the benefits of participating in the 1999 Certified Angus Beef Restaurant Contest. The top three wait staff, Jeff Fredrickson, Sue Anne Lizana, and Randee Ladner were awarded $100, $75 and $50, respectively, for their outstanding efforts to increase Certified Angus Beef product sales, and earned entries into the grand-prize drawing for $4,000 to be held May 12.

Sue Anne Lizana received the Team Spirit Award, an award presented to the staff member generating the most enthusiasm and contributing to the overall Certified Angus Beef sales effort during the contest.

The restaurant contest is for licensed Certified Angus

Beef Program restaurants serving Certified Angus Beef product for all steak and roast items. The contest was designed to reward exceptional staff for outstanding sales and encourage them to inform their customers about Certified Angus Beef products.

The CAB Program is a non-profit organization established by the American Angus Association in 1978. The program requires some of the beef industry's most stringent standards ensuring the quality and consistency of every Certified Angus Beef product.

Call 1-877-2-EAT-CAB for cooking, food safety or other product information including where to buy the brand. Visit www.cabprogram.com for other information.

Carriere elected to state tourism board

The Mississippi Tourism Association elected its 1999/2000 board of directors during the recent Governor's Conference on Tourism held at the Grand Casino Hotel in Tunica.

Elected to the new board was Beth Carriere of the Hancock County Tourism Development Visitors Bureau. She will serve as Area 5 director for the term of three years.

The Mississippi Tourism Association is a 250-member private sector organization representing all facets of the hospitality industry.

Longo said that while the city welcomes qualified developers, the matter should be addressed by the Commission prior to coming before the board.

In other zoning matters:

—The board approved a request by John Stiglet for a variance of five feet from the right side yard setback and ten feet from the rear yard set back in order to build a detached building on property located at 430 Old Spanish Trail.

—A request from Conrad Mavor for a variance from the required height requirement in order to build a six-foot fence on property located at 1111 Longo Street was approved.

—A request from Charles David Stahl for a variance of ten feet from the rear yard setback on property located at 401 Ne-caise Street in order to build a garage was approved.

—A request from Brehm Bell for a variance of five feet on property located in the 900 block of Eighth Street in order to build a new residence was approved.

—A request by Wayne Westcott to create four parcels from one large parcel located in the 700 block of Beach Boulevard was tabled pending additional information.

In other news from Waveland, Longo announced two upcoming events aimed at the city's youngsters.

The Mississippi Beach Kings soccer team is scheduled to host a soccer camp June 21-24 at the Coleman Avenue Soccer Field, Longo reported. The camp will be divided into two sessions with children eight years and under attending from 9-11:30 a.m. and those nine years and over attending from 5:30-8 p.m. The board approved the clinic pending receipt of a certificate of insurance.

Longo also announced that June 12 is the date for the second annual American Legion Post 77 fishing rodeo. The board approved offering free admission to the Garfield Ladner Pier in conjunction with the rodeo.

—The board approved proclaiming the week of May 2-8 as "Goodwill Week."

Bay

Homes on the site are expected to range up to $425,000, and will be built under requirements laid out in architectural covenants governed by a committee.

In other matters Tuesday, council set a June 1 public hearing on proposed changes to the city's sign ordinance provisions regulating banners. Council also will hold a workshop on the proposed Comprehensive Plan that same night.

Chief Building Inspector Bill Carrieger has waged a crackdown recently on illegal banners in the city, bringing some unhappy merchants to City Hall in protest. Council had hoped to pass the two proposed ordinance amendments Tuesday night, laying the issue to bed.

Scafide said, however, a public hearing is necessary because the sign ordinance carries the weight of zoning regulations.

The proposed amendments will give merchants or others up to 12 weeks per year to display banners — four more weeks than currently allowed. Two weeks, however, must lapse between display of banners for special events and promotions, and the banners can stay in place for a maximum of two weeks.

The regulations will limit banners to 25 square feet in total area, and they must not be within 20 feet of any street. Fees for such banners are streamers will be $20 per application.

In addition, the amendments will add a new definition for enforcement of the regulations: A banner is a sign which is designed and intended for temporary use only. And it is made of lightweight material which is considered temporary, or it's a sign which advertises or calls attention to some special event occurring on the premises where the banner is located.

While it's expected council will have several other changes to make to the city's sign ordinance, the banner regulation revamp comes in the wake of a renewed concern over a proliferation of banners at area commercial establishments.

Carrieger told council that while questions over the banner regulations have been pending, a lot of the signs, which he had removed or ordered removed, have reappeared. The public hearing is set for 7 p.m.

In other matters Tuesday, council:

■ Appointed Charles Heitkamp to the Planning and Zoning Commission, succeeding Stanley Beauregard, whose term has expired. Heitkamp will serve until May 2, 2000.

■ Approved an ordinance making it illegal for persons under age 18 to use or possess tobacco in the city limits. The ordinance specifically outlaws tobacco use by students in public schools or at school functions, as well as sales by merchants to underage persons. It sets a $100 fine for violations. More than dozen area youths, members of the police Explorer Scout troop, were on hand to show support for the ordinance.

■ Held an executive session to discuss matters in litigation.

Landfill

Rivers Solid Waste Authority in Pontotoc County, which went all the way to the Mississippi Supreme Court.

Landord said, "Selection and acquisition of landfill sites to be operated by a Regional Solid Waste Management Authority rests with the governing board of the authority, and not with the Board of Supervisors. Therefore, any such petition and/or election thereon would not be binding on the regional authority."

The Authority has already held a required public meeting on the York proposal, but has not yet taken a vote on whether to amend the 20-year solid waste plan or signed a contract with the Yorks.

Gex said it is his interpretation of the law, that if the county actually signs a contract with the Yorks that involves expenditure of county monies, supervisors may be able to call an election on the matter.

The Solid Waste Authority meets Wednesday and has about 45 days to decide whether to go forward with the York proposal or enter into a new long-term contract with Waste Management Inc.

Authority Chairman Rocky Pullman attempted in vain to get a feel from supervisors on whether to continue negotiations with the Yorks.

"I'd like to know how the rest of supervisors stand on the matter," Pullman asked.

He was greeted by stone silence, although at the public hearing on the landfill proposal, Board President Moran rose up to say he had talked to his constituents, and he was now of the opinion that a landfill should not be located in the buffer zone. Moran said he thought a landfill would stifle growth in the northern part of the county.

Katherine "Chicky" Knox, who is among opponents of the landfill, says the petition speaks for the citizens of Hancock County.

"Doesn't that say how the people of Hancock County feel?" she told the Echo. "There is no need for a landfill of that magnitude in Hancock County. Pearl River just had an 80-acre expansion (of its landfill), and Pecan Grove (in Harrison County) isn't going away," she said.

And, Mary Sindors of Waveland, who heads up Hancock County Citizens for Responsible Dumping, said her group has asked the Attorney General's office for "a reconsideration" of the opinion cited by Gex.

She cited two sections of the Mississippi Code, "which places final approval of the location of a private landfill solely upon the governing entity having jurisdiction within the property's geographical areas, which in this case is the Board of Supervisors."

She said another part of the code clearly states that to amend the Solid Waste Plan requires approval of the Board of Supervisors of each county forming the authority.

Sindors said state Sen. Scottie Cuevas has also allied with her group against the landfill, and will join with them in asking the Attorney General for reconsideration.

USM to get $14 million for capital improvement

The University of Southern Mississippi will receive $14 million for capital improvement projects next fiscal year.

USM President Horace Fleming, addressing faculty and staff during the university's annual spring convocation April 8, said the USM funding is part of a $70.6 million bond bill approved by the 1999 Legislature for a variety of building and renovation projects.

The USM president also noted the Legislature had authorized a 7.5 percent pay raise pool for university employees in the new fiscal year that starts July 1, but said the state College Board had not yet set guidelines for allocating those raises.

Fleming said USM's share of the bond money approved in House Bill 1675 included:

- $6 million for expansion of the Shelby Thames Polymer Science Research Center;
- $4 million for general repairs and renovations;
- $3 million for phase II construction of a planned $9 million library and media center at the Gulf Park campus in Long Beach;

- $500,000 to begin preliminary plans for construction of a proposed $25 million student life center in the heart of the Hattiesburg campus; and
- $500,000 for repairs and renovations at the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory in Ocean Springs.

Also, a separate bond bill, House Bill 1671, will provide USM $1.5 million for planned construction of a $7 million international hydrography center.

The center will be operated by USM's Department of Marine Science at Stennis Space Center in Hancock County, subject to final approval of the state College Board.
